

DEVELOPING OUR ENERGY RESOURCES

Our nation, especially California, is blessed with an abundance of traditional and renewable energy resources. However, red tape and frivolous litigation is blocking the development of America's energy resources, killing jobs and slamming families with sky-high energy costs.

David supports expanding our domestic energy potential to reduce our dependence on foreign energy and save money here at home. California can play an instrumental role in energy production. In addition to renewable energy sources like solar and hydro power, our State has the potential to produce oil and natural gas. Developing California's energy resources will create jobs in our communities while lowering our national demand for energy by supporting innovation to improve our economy's energy efficiency.
