

FINDING VALLEY FAMILIES JOBS

While the stock market is at an all-time high and the unemployment rate nationally continues to drop, too many people in the 21st Congressional District are out of work and aren't feeling the positive effects of our growing economy. The unemployment rate in the San Joaquin Valley is nearly double the national average.

David knows that our economy needs to work for rural and working families, not just big cities. Small businesses are the backbone of our nation's economy and needless regulations and a greater tax burden make it harder for them to hire. David will work to pass common sense legislation that will put Americans, especially those in the Central Valley, back to work.
